Welcome to Guntersville

A Message from Mayor Leigh Dollar

Guntersville is a lakeside community defined by natural beauty, outdoor recreation, and genuine small-town charm. Situated on a peninsula and surrounded by 69,000 acres of Lake Guntersville, Guntersville offers mountain views, stunning sunsets, and access to the Tennessee River.

Enjoy world-class fishing, vibrant shopping and dining opportunities, and year-round recreation. Whether you are here to compete in a bass tournament, hike scenic trails, explore our historic downtown, or simply relax by the water, you will find that Guntersville offers both adventure and tranquility in equal measure. The Lake Guntersville State Park provides miles of trails, abundant wildlife, and beautiful lodging accommodations. Our Downtown Historic District, listed on the National Register of Historic Places, features locally owned shops, great restaurants, and the Mountain Valley Arts Council Gallery. Just steps away, the City Harbor development offers additional dining, shopping, and waterfront experiences.

Beyond the scenic views and outdoor opportunities, what truly sets Guntersville apart is our people. We are proud of the strong sense of community, safety, and quality of life that make this city such a special place to live and visit.

On behalf of our city leadership and residents, thank you for choosing Guntersville. We are honored to welcome you and hope your time here creates lasting memories.

Sincerely,

Leigh Dollar

Lake Living

“ ...THE MOST BEAUTIFUL MOUNTAIN-LAKE SUNSETS YOU WILL FIND ANYWHERE! ”

Whether you're settling in for the first time or have called it home for years, Guntersville offers an exceptional quality of life that's hard to match. Our community takes pride in its strong school system, vibrant arts scene, and an abundance of recreational opportunities.

From boating and fishing on the lake to hiking scenic trails, shopping local, and enjoying great food, there's always something fun to do.

With a cost of living below the national average and low property taxes, Guntersville is both appealing and affordable. The area offers a diverse range of neighborhoods, including scenic lakefronts, golf course communities, charming areas, and modern new developments. Whether you're single, raising a family, or planning for retirement, there's a place here that suits your lifestyle.

Residents take pride in well-kept homes and shared community values that create a strong sense of belonging.

Surrounded by stunning lake views and supported by a close-knit, welcoming community, Guntersville is a place where you can live well, relax often, and feel right at home.

“As a lifelong resident of Guntersville, I never take for granted the beauty of the lake, the strength of our community, and the growth shaping our future. My family and I are grateful to be raising the next generation here, instilling the values of faith, integrity, and service that guide our lives. For more than 70 years, our family business has proudly served this town – a reflection of our deep roots, strong faith, and enduring commitment to Guntersville.”

STATE PARKS

Marshall County is home to three beautiful state parks. The Lake Guntersville State Park, located seven miles from downtown Guntersville, offers camping and glamping, a hotel and conference center with a restaurant featuring breathtaking bluff views, lakeside cabins, and remodeled mountain chalets. The State Park also provides visitors with an 18-hole championship golf course, a sandy beach area, a pool, and a zipline course. The park also features an extensive trail system of 36 miles of hiking and biking trails to fit a variety of fitness levels.

Cathedral Caverns and Buck's Pocket State Parks are located less than 25 miles from Guntersville. Cathedral Caverns, a 14-acre underground world, is home to the world's largest cavern entrance, stalagmite and stalactite forests, and a frozen waterfall. They offer four rental cabins as well as a primitive campsite to extend your enjoyment of the park. Buck's Pocket State Park is a unique canyon covering over 2,000 acres. Buck's Pocket offers a recently renovated campground along with a primitive campsite, picnic areas, hiking trails, and ATV trails.

GOLFING

You can't beat the view from the Guntersville area golf courses. Gunter's Landing features an 18-hole, 6,883 yards, Par 72 scenic golf course with beautiful bent grass greens that is consistently ranked among the top courses in Alabama and the US. Every hole provides a new and exciting experience.

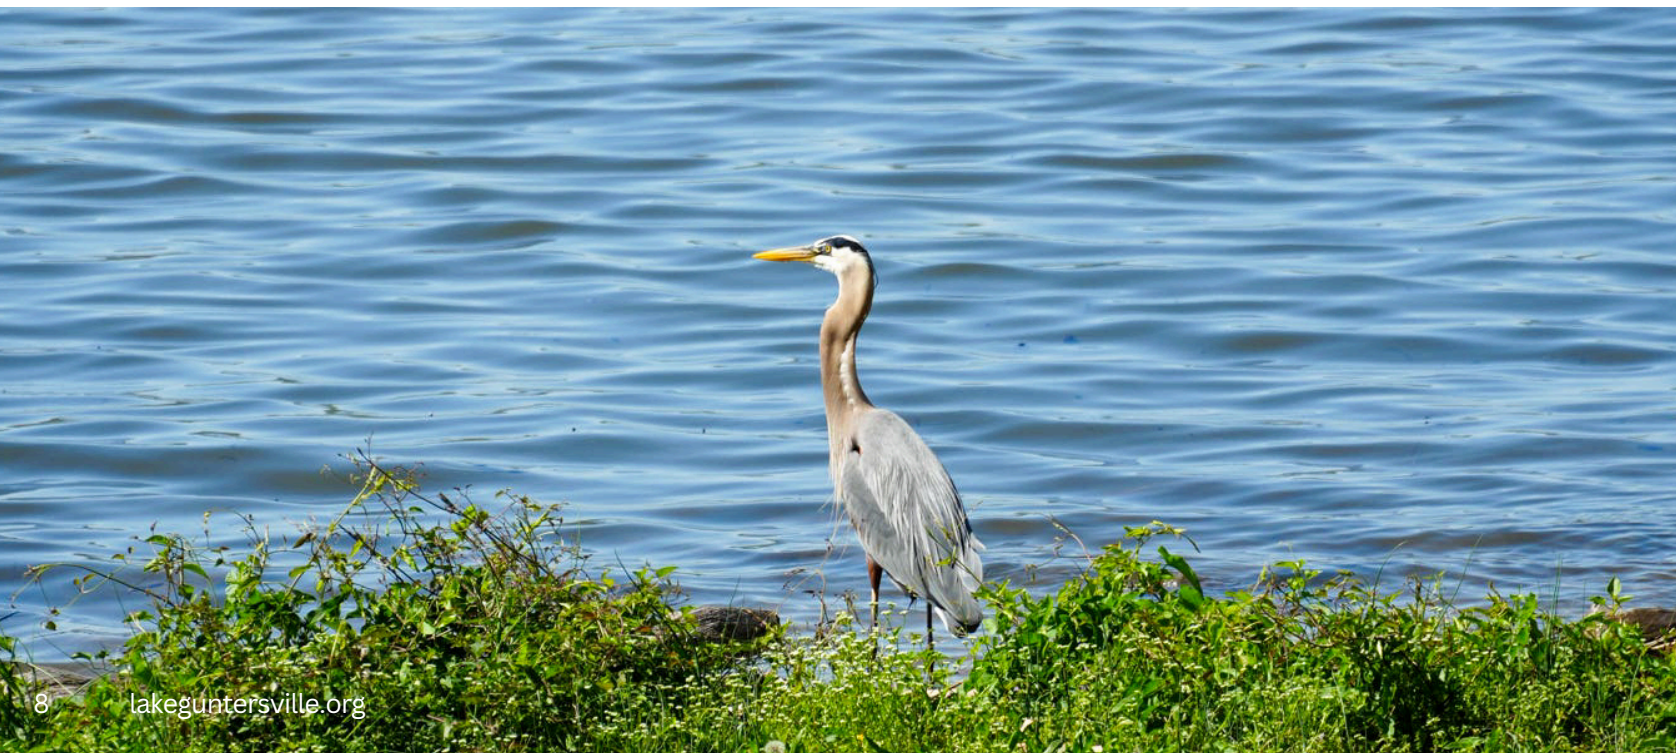

The Lake Guntersville State Park's Eagle's Nest golf course is nestled among the pines at the top of Taylor Mountain. Offering magnificent lake views along with elevation changes from gentle slopes to rolling hills, these links are a must-play for any golfer. This course is 18 holes, 6,785 yards, Par 72 and open 7 days a week, weather permitting.

BIRDING TRAIL

The Lake Guntersville area is known as a safe haven for the American Bald Eagle, with an eagle family establishing a nest along the waterline of Sunset Drive in 2020 and bringing thousands of visitors to the area hoping to catch a glimpse. The pair hatched another eaglet in 2026. The Lake Guntersville State Park offers Eagle Awareness Weekends in January and February, which is prime time for eagle watching. Visit alapark.com for more details on this program.

Guntersville is also home to three sites on the North Alabama Birding Trail. At these Guntersville sites, you might see Red-breasted Mergansers, Lesser Scaup, and Gadwalls, as well as Common Loons and Hooded and Red-necked Grebes. Other species to look for during the year include Double-crested Cormorants, Blue Herons, Ospreys, and Bald Eagles, all of which nest nearby.

Sports & Recreation

The City's Parks and Recreation Department provides quality programs, services, and facilities for the public. Its goal is to offer something for every citizen of Guntersville and to reach out to all age groups, interests, and physical abilities with rewarding recreational opportunities.

The Parks and Recreation Department maintains over 5 miles of walking and biking trails along the lake. The Sunset Drive walking trail was ranked in the top 25 walking trails in the state by the Alabama Tourism Department. The trails begin at City Harbor and go under the River Bridge to follow Lurleen B. Wallace Drive, continue along Sunset Drive, and loop around at Willow Beach Road. Multiple pavilions and picnic areas along the trail are available for family reunions, birthday parties, and more. To reserve these pavilions, contact Parks and Recreation at 256-571-7590.

The levee, located along the southern edge of Guntersville, features an additional 1.5 miles of scenic gravel that trail look over the lake.

Youth sports and programs are an important division. The rec center gym and ball fields underwent a major renovation in order to better serve the community. Basketball, baseball, softball, tennis, and swimming are just some of the programs offered. Classes offered for adults include dance, computer, crocheting and knitting, pottery, karate, and fitness.

Guntersville's commitment to athletics is shown through its recent achievements, including the 2026 Guntersville Wildcats girls volleyball team winning the AHSAA Class 5A State Volleyball Championship and the 2026 Guntersville Wildcats girls basketball team capturing a Class 5A State Championship title.

The Guntersville Parks and Recreation maintains a wide range of facilities, including baseball and softball fields, tennis and pickleball courts, meeting spaces, a gym, an Olympic-size pool, a waterpark, and playgrounds. The department also oversees numerous city parks spanning 175 acres along the lake, along with public beaches, designated swimming areas, fishing piers, and boat launches.

Education

The Schools of Guntersville offer excellent facilities with small class sizes, highly qualified teachers, and access to state-of-the-art technology. Students have access to a wide variety of courses, with an emphasis on reading and math in the elementary grades. Enrichment programs such as Project Lead The Way, a K-12 initiative that teaches students STEM skills, and the PULSE Student Academy, which teaches about leadership and utilities, also provide valuable learning experiences. Raising Wildcats, a reading program for preschoolers, also promotes optimal early childhood education.

Middle school and high school students have many options for electives as well as opportunities for college credit in the 11th and 12th grades, including the Launch Program. The Launch Program offers youth internships in the workforce to start attaining real-life employability skills, critical for both employers and employees. Numerous extracurricular activities exist in fine arts and athletics. For more information on the Schools of Guntersville, visit their website at guntersvilleboe.com.

The area is also home to Marshall Christian School and Grace Classical Christian Academy, two private Christian schools. A wide selection of preschools and daycare centers are also available to Guntersville residents.

Nearby institutions of higher learning include: Snead State Community College in Boaz, University of Alabama at Huntsville, Alabama A&M in Huntsville, Athens State University in Athens, and Jacksonville State University in Jacksonville.

Health & Wellness

As a publicly owned, not-for-profit hospital system, Marshall Medical Centers provides comprehensive inpatient and outpatient healthcare services. As an affiliate of the Huntsville Hospital Health System – the second largest health system in the state of Alabama – Marshall Medical Centers is one of 14 hospitals throughout northern Alabama and southern Tennessee providing advanced health care services through this cooperative, community-based hospital network.

The people at Marshall Medical Centers serve the residents of Marshall County and the surrounding area (population about 125,000). With two hospitals, eight outpatient locations, and a highly trained team of physicians practicing 27 specialties, Marshall Medical is a confident, convenient choice for local healthcare. Residents can remain close to home and receive excellent care – often provided by those who are neighbors and friends.

Named by the Joint Commission as a "Top Quality Performer" among America's hospitals, our patients can be assured they are being treated in an environment where a premium is placed on quality and best practices.

Marshall Medical Center North is a 90-bed primary care hospital with medical, surgical and obstetrical services. The newest services include robotic-assisted surgery capabilities for orthopedic procedures and Adult Outpatient Speech Therapy.

You'll find easy access to health, fitness, and more at Marshall Wellness Centers. Located at both Marshall Medical Center North and South, Marshall Wellness Centers are equipped with the latest fitness, wellness, and rehabilitative technologies available, including Olympic-size pools at each location.

The Marshall Cancer Care Center is a 22,000 square-foot patient-friendly facility that provides the latest, multi-disciplinary techniques for both radiation and medical oncology, as well as an on-site pharmacy, in a convenient mid-county location.

Marshall Professional Center provides a convenient central location for several specialty services, including the Wound Healing Center, Marshall Imaging, and Marshall Rheumatology.

Marshall Medical Centers' GoldCare 55+ program promotes healthy, independent lifestyles through special events such as the annual Senior Health & Fitness Day, monthly Lunch N' Learns, and affordable travel for senior groups.

The History of Guntersville

John Gunter, who arrived from the Carolinas in 1785, is recognized as the first white settler in what is now Marshall County. He established a homestead at a salt deposit along the south bank of the Tennessee River, near the present-day Veterans Memorial Bridge. This site became known as Gunter’s Landing.

Gunter married Ghe-go-he-li—later known as Catherine—the daughter of Chief Bushyhead, and together they raised a large family. Thanks to its prime location along the river and the Gunter’s strong relationships with Native American communities, Gunter’s Landing quickly grew into a thriving settlement. Over time, John Gunter accumulated significant land and wealth, and his descendants became influential leaders throughout both Native American Territory and the surrounding region.

Among those descendants was famed American humorist Will Rogers, whose grandmother was Cherokee. His family later moved west during the period of Native American relocation. Native American tribes—primarily the Cherokee—lived in the Guntersville area well into the 1830s, even after the formation of Marshall County in 1836. In a tragic turn, Gunter’s Landing, once a place of cooperation between cultures, became a departure point for the forced removal of Native Americans along the Trail of Tears.

Today, the Guntersville Museum honors this history with a dedicated gallery recognizing the Cherokee and Creek peoples who were displaced from their homelands.

Education in the area began with a Presbyterian mission school established for Native Americans about two miles south of the river. Known as “Old Missionary,” the school stood along the historic Creek Path, a route long used by Native Americans traveling to hunting grounds. Among its notable teachers were Dick and Catherine Brown, who were of Cherokee descent. Mr. Brown also served as an interpreter for Sequoyah, the visionary who developed the Cherokee written language.

Another key figure in Guntersville’s history was Louis Wyeth, a young lawyer from Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. Arriving in 1837, just one year after John Gunter’s death, Wyeth played a vital role in shaping the community. He helped establish Guntersville as the county seat and successfully led efforts for the Alabama Legislature to officially incorporate the town on February 3, 1848.

Early settlers came gradually, many of Scottish, Irish, and English descent, traveling south through the Carolinas, Tennessee, and Kentucky. Though most were hardworking people with limited involvement in national conflicts, the American Civil War left a lasting impact on the town. Guntersville endured heavy Union shelling, and by the war’s end, only seven structures remained standing: the Guntersville Hotel, courthouse, jail, school, Masonic Hall, and two homes.

One of the city’s most distinguished natives, John Allan Wyeth, experienced the war firsthand as a prisoner at just 17 years old. Afterward, he farmed briefly before pursuing a career in medicine. He began practicing in Guntersville, later continuing his training in New York City, where he rose to prominence as one of the world’s leading surgeons. His expertise was so respected that he was called to consult on a procedure for Queen Victoria. Dr. Wyeth went on to found one of New York’s largest hospitals. In the 1880s, he returned to Guntersville to practice medicine, write, and contribute to the city’s growth. Today, he remains the only individual from Marshall County honored in the Alabama Hall of Fame, with a statue on the Capitol grounds.

Following the Civil War, Guntersville began to flourish as a river town. The arrival of the railroad in 1892 sparked new growth and opportunity. Another major transformation came with the construction of the Tennessee Valley Authority dam. When the Guntersville Dam was completed in 1939 and the reservoir filled, Guntersville became a peninsula surrounded by 69,000 acres of water. This shift positioned the city as an important shipping hub and distribution port.

In the years that followed, Guntersville gained national attention as a destination for recreation, earning the nickname “Powerboat Capital of the South.” The first powerboat race, held in 1939, drew an estimated 60,000 spectators to witness the Dixie Motor Races and experience the newly formed lake—marking the largest crowd ever gathered in North Alabama at the time.

Community & Worship

Guntersville offers a variety of volunteer opportunities that allow individuals to make a meaningful impact in the community. Various civic clubs and nonprofit organizations are dedicated to addressing different needs, including education, hunger relief, animal care, and community development. Volunteering not only provides a chance to give back, but also helps individuals connect with like-minded people, build relationships, and develop skills. If you're new to the area and looking to meet people while making a difference, or a longtime resident eager to contribute your time and talents, there are plenty of ways to get started.

Baby, Oh Baby!

Comprehensive resources, education and support to moms throughout their pregnancy journey and beyond.

SmartStart

A health-education program designed to benefit pre-teens entering puberty.

GoldCare 55+

Our senior program combines fun and fitness aimed at promoting a healthy and independent lifestyle.

Excellent quality of life includes having good Community Connections.

Community Connections from Marshall Medical is a group of programs designed to support community needs at different stages of life. These popular, proven programs address moms and newborns, tweens, and our valued senior patrons through classes, outings and events. By focusing on the needs unique to different age groups, our goal is to help create connections that promote a healthier community for everyone.
